

IS THERE LIFE AFTER DEATH?

Three men carried crosses as the crowd lined the way

Crucifixions were common, but this was no usual day

Two thieves would face death for crimes they had done.

The other – a Healer of men and God's only Son.

Sinless and perfect without a hint of blame

He took the cross, its ridicule and its shame.

For He knew this day had long since been planned

On behalf of the world He would make His stand

The sacrifice of the Lamb would be the price

To redeem you and me, he didn't think twice

He gave up his spirit as he breathed his last breath

Some mocked and some wept as Jesus succumbed to death.

In another man's tomb Christ's body was laid

As his disciples retreated, confused and afraid.

The light of the world seemed hopelessly dark

But the glory of the cross would soon leave its mark.

Just as he promised, he would raise from the dead

And prove He was God - every word that he said.

That Sunday morning the power of God was displayed

As the grave burst open and every sin debt was paid

Christ's resurrection gives life and freedom to all

All those who will hear and answer his call.

Is there life after death? Undoubtedly yes!

We'll live again, but with a different address!
