Loving Others

July 5, 2026

It was supposed to be a wonderful celebration. After a 53-year drought, the New York Knicks finally won another NBA Championship. It was a great moment for the city of New York, and thousands celebrated that remarkable accomplishment.

The problem is that not everyone celebrates well – even people who should know better. I understand excitement and I know youthful exuberance might get a little out of control, but at some point, shouldn’t we learn self-restraint and lawful celebration?

Angie Báez, a 40-year-old JPMorgan Chase senior executive, was caught on video dumping trashcan full of garbage onto an NYC sidewalk at the Knicks’ championship parade and then stealing the decorated trash receptacle. The video quickly went viral. And JP Morgan wasted no time issuing the statement, “This employee is no longer with the company.”

I think it is safe to say that Ms. Baez never anticipated the fallout from her actions. And I wonder if she considered how antithetical her actions were to the joyful, community celebration. Dumping garbage all over the sidewalk reveals little to no concern for NY-Cresidents and certainly no consideration for the sanitation workers who keep the city clean every day.

As Christians, we are called to consider others as better than ourselves and to look to the interests of others (Phi. 2:3-4). As we live our lives in service to our God, let’s remember to honor God with our choices, and by doing so, we will honor others, and hopefully, our actions will point them to our heavenly Father.

At the conclusion of the service if you have any questions about our church or about becoming a Christian, please speak to our minister or with one of the elders who will be available at the rear of the auditorium.

Thank you for visiting and we hope you will feel welcome enough to come again.
